Institutional Strategies and Practices

P.K.M. COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, MADAMPAM

Institutional Strategies and Practices to develop competence to organise Academic, cultural, sports and community related events

P.K.M. College of Education adopts a decentralised approach in its curricular transaction process. It considers organisation and presentation as the fundamental competencies to be acquired through the B.Ed. program. The B.Ed. programme is a means for the transformation of a graduate or postgraduate student into a professionally competent teacher through various programmes, activities, and projects. The institution adopts a participatory approach and ensures the involvement of all students in planning, organising, executing, and evaluating the various activities.

For instance, one of the initiatives undertaken by the institution is the Energy Conservation Awareness Campaign - URJAKIRAN.

The process of implementing community-based public campaigning is carried out through different phases.

In the first phase, upon receiving the call for the application, the student teachers are given the opportunity to design the programme, and they themselves build teams and take leadership to find a place for the campaign and apply through the proper channel with the support of the faculty in charge. They are provided with opportunities for pre-workshop sessions and training organised by the funding agency.

In the second phase, on receiving approval from the agency, the student teachers are divided into teams for planning and organising. They develop a plan of action for the programme and form various committees under the supervision of the faculty members. The student teachers are given the opportunity to contact and communicate with the resource persons and make the necessary arrangements. Detailed discussions on the arrangements to be made and the distribution of work are done in a collective way. The institution allows the student teachers to design the brochures, notices, banners, certificates, feedback forms, etc. that are necessary for the programme. Then they work on developing promo videos and posters or leaflets for publicity. The students will be making all the preparatory arrangements and will be having a trial of the programme to ensure the perfection of the event.

In the third phase, on the day of the event, the student teachers will be acting in various roles: As participants as well as the organisers, they manage the reception, welcome the resource persons, anchor the programme, felicitations, and vote of thanks for the programme, cultural events in between the programme, managing the refreshments, reporting and recording, documenting, streaming the programme, publishing the events in mass media and social media.

In the fourth phase, after the programme, the institution organises a feedback session as a round conference to evaluate the programme and improve quality in further programmes. The Students teachers are asked to critically evaluate the programme and its organisation pointing out areas to be improved.

In programmes like URJAKIRAN, the student teachers get the opportunity to get training at the training centres of the funding agency, and they are designated as the resource person for the district. The trained student teachers got various opportunities to act as resource persons for the next programme. Some student teachers were appointed as observers for evaluating the campaigns at other places.
