EPC 02 -WORKSHOP KALAVARNAM

To enhance the creative and theatrical skills of student teachers, the workshop KALAVARNAM was organized as part of EPC 2 on art and drama. The workshop commenced with an introductory session where Mr. Biju Neduvallor discussed the impact of drama and art in education. He engaged the student teachers in various exercises designed to help them express emotions, use body language effectively, and improve storytelling skills. A unique aspect of the workshop was the activity where student teachers were asked to change their costumes and participate in skits. This exercise allowed them to step into different roles, enhancing their understanding of character portrayal and stage presence. The skits were conducted in a highly interactive and supportive environment, encouraging spontaneity and creativity. Throughout the session, participants were actively involved in discussions, role-playing, and improvisational performances. The facilitator provided constructive feedback, helping them to refine their performances and highlighting ways to incorporate drama into their teaching methods.

ART & DRAMA :SRISHTI.

The next segment of the workshop was meticulously planned to cover various subject areas, with resource persons assigned to specific disciplines. The organizing team ensured the inclusion of literature, natural science, mathematics, physical science, and social science. Each session was structured to include a welcome speech, an interactive session led by resource persons, and a concluding vote of thanks. The resource persons designated for different subjects were Anupama Pavithran, Adarshkumar C A, and Sudhina T in the literature section; Chithira P, Radhu Radhakrishnan, and Presna Prem in natural science; Preethika O and Malavika K in mathematics; Bhavana T.V and Anakha Balakrishnan in physical science.

NATYALAYAM

The third day of the EPC Workshop 2, titled Natyalayam aimed to provide student teachers with an in-depth understanding of traditional Indian dance forms and folk music (Nadan Pattu). The program commenced at 9:30 a.m. with a welcome address by Bhavana T V and a felicitation by Amin Mathew, college Chairperson. The morning session focused on dance and was led by Anaswara Muraleedharan, specialized in Bharatanatyam, and Bhagyalakshmi, specialized in Mohiniyattam. They provided insights into dance judgment criteria and introduced basic dance mudras. By 1:30 p.m., the dance session resumed with Sangeetha Saji, an expert in Kuchipudi, who elaborated further on the nuances of classical dance. The vote of thanks for the dance session was delivered by Arya K. The afternoon session featured a Nadan Pattu workshop, conducted by Radhu Radhakrishnan, accompanied by her core supporters Anakha Balakrishnan, Malavika K, Anagha R K, Sudhina T, including the presence of an Indian Idol participant. Student teachers were divided into groups and assigned to perform Nadan Pattu, with their performances being evaluated based on traditional folk music standards. The session concluded with a vote of thanks by Christian Jose.

EPC, 3-DAY WORKSHOP

As part of EPC, a 3-day workshop titled 'ODYSSEY: A Journey to Self' commenced on 19 February 2025 at P.K.M College. The inaugural day, dubbed 'TRANQUIL TRAILS,' unfolded under the astute leadership of coordinators Vishnu Krishnan, Jyothis Thomas, and Thejaswi M.S. The student teachers embarked on an excursion that facilitated an intimate connection with nature. On the first day of this workshop led by Sister Carolyn, the Malayalam teacher and main resource person of this workshop. A workshop titled "ESSENCE - Mind Body Spirit Connection," focused on understanding the self, was conducted for B. Ed students at our College on February 20, 2025. The program aimed to explore the interconnectedness of mind, body, and spirit through music therapy and meditation. The workshop was part of the EPC course and was held in the college auditorium. The first day, Tranquil Trails, saw students embark on a nature walk through Madampam, collecting bamboos, plants, and other natural elements. On the second day, of Essence, participants engaged in meditation and music therapy sessions at the college auditorium, fostering inner peace and mindfulness. The final day, Amity, promoted harmony through peace art, a greening campus initiative, and a fun fruit salad-making activity. The workshop was well-received, providing students with a unique opportunity to connect with nature, enhance self-awareness, and build a sense of community. The "ESSENCE Mind Body Spirit Connection" workshop appears to have been a successful event, providing B.Ed students with valuable insights into self-understanding through the powerful mediums of music therapy and meditation. The program was well-organized, with attention paid to logistical details, and the sessions led by Sr. Caroline clearly resonated with the participants. The sharing session at the end allowed for processing and reflection on the experiences, further enhancing the impact of the workshop. The vote of thanks was delivered by Sisira, formally concluding the event.
